1. Officer concerned has been around for just short of two weeks. He has been interviewed by G-2, G-3, and this Section. Thought he was squeezed dry by now. Sorry I overlooked the possibility that you and G-3 might want another session with him. Yet you are quite right in your above comment and it was thoughtless of me not to verify with you and G-3 as well as the G-in-C that his release was in order. Am grateful that the A.G. caught my error.
2. Please advise A.G. or have G-3 do so when Major DYESS can be released.

1. Contents noted. This exchange of views is not without merit. I was not aware that Dyess was around for two weeks; the impression given me was he engaged in formulating his reports in AIB, etc. I suggest that each Section advise the other when they are through with an interview, and move on to the next step?

2. On perusal of present reports, it is apparent that technical features in the meaning of G-2, G-3, and G-4, are not covered. By agreement with G-2, these Sections are developing questionnaires, for future use, embodying the items they are interested in. The result of these interrogations will become, in fact, "technical appendices" to the basic report, which the person concerned may develop. Stenographic notes and exchange of copies between sections is contemplated such copies will be filed automatically with P.R.S.

1. I hereby certify that I had direct knowledge of the existence of an order awarding Major WILLIAM E. DYESS, O-22526, AS, the Silver Star on or about February 6, 1942 for outstanding service performed while he was serving as "an air corps infantryman" on the west coast of Bataan.
2. I recall that on the day the orders were published General George shook hands with the then Lieutenant Dyess saying, "This isn't what we wanted but it will do for the time being."
3. I do not believe a copy of the orders exist in Australia and possibly not at all since so many of our records were destroyed.
4. It is my absolute conviction that there is no question about the validity of Major Dyess' right to this decoration and substantiation is to be found in the list of individuals cited in the "Roster of the 24th Pursuit Group" compiled by Colonel W. O. Grever, just prior to his return to the United States. In this report under "Silver Star" will be found the name of 1st Lieutenant William E. Dyess.

SUBJECT: Major William E. DYESS

TO : Colonel C. WHITNEY

1. In connection with the information you wanted today on the subject officer, I would like to point out that in my opinion (and certainly reflects that of the late Brig. General GEORGE in every instance), Major DYESS will emerge from the history of the ill-fated defense of the Philippines as one of the most courageous and gallant figures. He was selected by General GEORGE to head-up what was the remains of our air forces into a tiny but extremely hard-hitting Squadron. Repeatedly the then Captain DYESS utilized his pitiful meagre resources to chase overwhelming enemy air strength from the skies, but on the 2nd of March, 1942, although a number of our pilots participated (and certainly did their full best), it was really Captain DYESS who must get the credit for sinking roughly 40,000 tons of Japanese shipping in SUBIC BAY -- easily the heaviest blow we delivered to the enemy's strength at any one time during the whole campaign.

2. Repeatedly Captain DYESS had urged that he be permitted to attempt bombing by means of single 500 lb bombs attached to a home-made device rigged on a "P-40." On this day when so much shipping was reported in SUBIC BAY that we were forced to conclude that an invasion attempt soon would be made on our west coast, General GEORGE gave permission. The attacks went on all afternoon with Captain DYESS flying our "bomber" with complete disregard of the great danger he was inviting upon himself. His bombing severely damaged several large vessels and set fire to large enemy stores on GRANDE ISLAND. But it remained to the deadly accuracy of his strafing to bring about the destruction -- unbelievable at it seems -- of a 17,000 ton vessel, 12,000 ton vessel, an 8,000 ton one and 2 or 3 small power-boats of between 500 and 1000 tons. (It is desired not to detract from the good work done by the other pilots, but since I interviewed all of them and wrote their operational report to the C/S, I am able to evaluate this work accurately.) So effective was this attack that the Japs officially reported that "54" four-engined "bombers" had attacked them.
