URMSG Sep Z 17452 folg msg transmitted at rqst of Dept of State: "Polg aide memoire left by representative of British embassy with dept of state on Sep 15, 1950: 'Informal conversations took place on the 18 Jul last between this embassy and the State Dept on the subj of the Japanese whaling ship capacity which would be aval for later whaling expeditions, if such expeditions were authd by the competent auth. In accordance with the terms of the Dept of State Aide Memoire of the 4 Oct 1946, to the effect that "any long range consideration of the rights of Japan to conduct whaling opns is a matter for allied discussion and decision", the state dept invited His Majestys govt to express their views as early as convlanient.

It is the understanding of His Majestys govt that the Supreme Commander for the allied powers has given permission for a Japanese expedition to go to the Antartic for the 1950/51 season and that the fleet will consist of the 2 factory ships hitherto used-the Nisshin Maru and the Hashidate Maru-together with 29 catcher boats and one 11000 ton freezer ship, the Tenyo Maru. This embassy would be grateful to be informed whether the composition of the fleet is as indicated.

It is also the understanding of His Majestys govt that proposals have been put fwd for (a) the building of a new factory ship of 23000 tons to replace an existing 15000 tons of (b) the salvaging of the Tonan Maru, a pre-war factory ship which is now lying aground on coral off Truk. It is the belief of the embassy that the employment of a larger factory ship, or ships, would involve the allotment of more catcher boats and the consequent killing, at a quicker rate, a larger nbr of whales during the season.

His Majestys govt accordingly suggest that this is essentially a long range consideration which should be the subject of allied discussion and decision, and they confidently hope that, before any arrangements are made which would permit expansion of the present Japanese whaling capacity, the subj would be fully discussed with his Majestys govt and the govts of those other powers whose interests are involved.

It is the intention of this present communication to take advantage of the consultative arrangement agreed to in 1945 and to announce that his Majestys govt will be glad of the opportunity to consider the matter in all its aspects before any commitments are made for the extension of the present Japanese whaling facilities. "The Dept of State suggests that you may desire to discuss substance note with UKLM and reqsts comments on which to base reply to British embassy."
