At Camp - while enroute to O'Donnell.
 Filipinos, hungry, thirsty, were crowding at the front. Japs tried to make room. One Jap allowed a Jap. 3 Japs took him & hid him in tree nearby. Evans, others in crowd at hand. Jap who was allowed gun would-high, threw him back. Jap was received. Second shot with. 3rd shot missed. Filipinos in air, pluck. Jap leaped up to against barrel. 4th shot, walked away after a drink. Some back, first lay out - enroute to O'Donnell - first in air. 3rd. struck below chest vein. Jap pulled out his shirt tail, wiping off sweat, replaced it in seat. hard, washed away.

At another route stop enroute to O'Donnell - a square "attached" to 805 mt. managed to swim into stockade at night (after following group the day before) then swimming into square rank. Fatty ignored warnings. Finally, when Fatty had rushed over to side of road where woman was offering food, a sep came up behind him + thrust 2 inches of bayonet up between buttocks. Bleeding, like a struck boy, Fatty fell back in line. Weakened, a comrade offered to carry barracks back. Fatty, with tears of gratitude, passed over bay. Comrade takes bay, opens it + passes out acc. contents to hungry soldiers. Fatty marches staggered along, not being excusable.

The March to O'Donnell -

A Lt. chief Finavar carrying much gold money in musette bag, N.Y. Co. asked him to pass it out among men. Lt. refused, insisting that his duty forbade it. N.Y. Co. said his duty had been to destroy money earlier, and stated that it never was certain to fall into hands of G.P.s. Lt. still denounced. Later a sep came along guns all trained on group. All times back Sgt Spud Murphy called to recruits having white flag, to stand up & wave flag; recruits, scared, were on ground: "if you want this white flag waved, come & wave it yourself." The old Irish veteran, fervently covering the officers' backs, got up, walked over with the true silver, picked up flag & waved it. Everything okay then. Some of our senior officers spoke English - spoke as a gentleman would - explained that his command were under orders to advance further south - commanded officers, - having white flag, conspicuously, to take heart & head for main highway.

At 9 A.M. supply trail - a Warrant officer, an habitual coward, was a great fear here. He would approach on any plane, he was always first in a hole, where he Everyone made for the door & stop just inside the door of the parking planes given less. When they had gone a trio of A. A. men walked over to the communication lines for hole to inquire as to the number and description of the planes.

As first they saw no one in the hole. Looking more closely they seeing the operator underneath the switch board.

"Planes out" they called, "the planes are all gone."

The timer was one, on his hands knees, peered out from under the part of duty, still hesitant. But as young of his receiving finally went to him out, and he thrust himself back brushing off the dirt from his clothes.
 Minutes of the two were arising as he saw many heavy beams, light beams were present and intercepting planes there has been in the light. Some way to the man who by the nature of his job should have been the authority, they inquired of him.
 "What kind of planes were they?"
 The operator stopped his business town.

While a band of warriors were grouped beside the road, near the military supply tent, deliberately hissing ourselves & busily quiet and busy turning at the never ending double file of batts marched up. How many phrases lay in quick step, some one exclaimed, soft voice:

"good god, look!"

We all looked in the direction towards which he was staring, open-mouthed. And then we saw soft the side road leading from the military office.

The sergeant's face was a thing of horror and terror. I had not seen a more magnificent sight by the march of the victors and their and the aspect of fear, a whole fumes. Returning his brain his expression was a terror as any seen in the nickelodeon houses films.

"good heaven! his going to put into the top ranks and set him for perhaps fifty yards or more.

Seemingly disoriented by the noise and indifference of the decedent heads, he regarded finally, stopped and stood staring in an obvious daze.
Then turning, ~~and~~ to the right he crossed an acre or so, broke through the line of his right, stumped of to the way side, grass and fell down, instantly, into a drainage ditch.

And this was on the morning when we were open on about 100000 American were being beaten brutally for their socializing at a gap!

There was in the line - "There's 4 planes" (loudness) "3 in 1 plane" (no response) "4 planes" (loud) (zap! at the same time)

On march to O'Donnell —

A sleepy, sad soldier was beginning at the close of day by hills along route. Was filling barracks beyond feet & refusing to stay in fog kept warning him to stay in was red, not musette bag, found money. He took it, & lapped it, and there were any chances the starting sections had to be good.

On morning of 4/9 - Count papers sent back in jungle, saw him on Batavia. Superior officer ordered preparations for screening - arms stocked in piles - under which to stick - one recruit volunteered to hold up white flag when flag came - group settled to rest.
Some sounds of muffled clapping sounds increased - they came from 3 sides. Non points of their lines of tanks were also edge of smoke banks. They came out of tanks fired pistol and other heads of arms. One arm, possibly, lunged for rifles, yelling, "Come on, the last tank worth fighting. A few more for guns. Stop firing & retreat for more to hold fire & stop guns.
Some moment, with machine would practically call out to all the others to get into fox holes. One time 2 planes flew toward them. U.S. fell in his hole - called out for every one to duck. Kept up his frantic call then felt truck drivers, cyclists etc., saw mutual agreement, and all three made for U.S.'s fox hole + simultaneously jumped in on top of U.S. Multiple screaming + growling. After planes had passed and returned to base, demanded understanding -

 "This is my fox hole"
