Worries need to be particularly alive to this matter of criticism for there is no mental poise, no happiness of all until the relation of oneself to the work has been adjusted. Worry about health. It is important to form the habit of taking the health of mind and body for what it is and making the best of it. True, if the conditions can be improved by the most careful and scientific care. But without fear and worry, not only prevent the development of the best health, but indeed produce disturbances that are quite distressing.

Whenever the activity of cerebrospinal system flows over into the realm of autonomic control, or precious balance is disturbed. The nutritive processes of life are designated to go on without conscious direction. The beating of the heart, breathing, digestion, peristalsis, liver activity, excretion and other functional activities are controlled by the autonomic system and spinal cord. The higher centers should at no time be conscious of them or concerned about them.

Salceby says, "This bodily processes and functions which are under the control of the lower levels of the nervous system are best performed when those lower levels are left undisturbed by orders from above."

Functional disease of the nervous system are frequently caused by worry. Both Hysteria and neurasthenia result from worry. One who expects oneself to worry about small matters, who expects oneself to worry about heart disease or deafness, from every sore throat is laid on a foundation of abnormal mental reaction for unhappiness and ill health.

Development of Wholesome Mental Habits : - It is quite possible to develop wholesome mental responses and for many to achieve a higher type of control than usual and customary. The secret lies in holding even in unimportant situations, the unemotional same intelligent attitude.

To train oneself in small things to meet the problems of life will find the owner strong, capable and efficient. Such training should begin in childhood. Situation should be met by boys and girls without allowing them to expect the rescuing hand.

A list of wholesome mental traits important to health will may not satisfactory to everyone but appear significant:

1. Confidence - Confidence in oneself, in one's power in the intrinsic value and worthiness of one's own personality is essential for the most abundant life. It was the principle that Jesus taught in this existence upon the love of the father of each person. His belief in one's power and one's work lies at the foundation of all worthwhile work and accomplishments.

Experimentally - give a person a puzzle and if he say "I didn't suppose I can do it, he renders his mind less able to discover the means for its puzzle but has got learned the process, he will attack it without more confidence. "The experience of success increase his confidence.

The only way to develop confidence is to try honestly and to keep at it until the experience of success comes.

2. Faith in the goodness of life:- Faith in the goodness of life, here and now, will be based upon an understanding of man relation to man and god. The path of faith in the goodness of life lies upon the common place every day affairs of work and play. It means optimism. It is not the optimism of the sentimental pollyanna who says that all things are beautiful. Many things are rotten, ugly and totally to be condemned. Optimism joy in the wonderful of life of which there are many. Nothing is quite destructive of real happiness and health of mind as pessimism. Doubt, fear and self-consciousness are the plague demons of joy.

3. Open minded and breath for view make for sanity. To keep an open mind means to be willing to accept any new proposal, however at variance without established belief at custom, whenever the new presents facts to sustain attention. The open mind, ability to see the facts with not close itself off
